MDM&C Expands its Geographic Footprint with Opening of Tinton Falls Office

MORRISTOWN, NJ – August 4, 2014 – McElroy, Deutsch, Mulvaney & Carpenter, LLP (“MDM&C” or “the Firm”), today announced that the Firm will open its eleventh office in Tinton Falls, New Jersey. With three offices already established in Morristown, Newark and Ridgewood, the Monmouth County location will provide MDM&C with its first physical presence in Central Jersey.

The office will be staffed by attorneys such as Retired New Jersey Superior Court Judge and Former Presiding Judge of the General Equity and Civil Divisions of the Monmouth County Vicinage, Thomas W. Cavanagh, Jr. Judge Cavanagh practiced law for over twenty years prior to his appointment as Superior Court Judge in 1998 and will now focus his practice on Mediations and Arbitrations. Also housed in the Tinton Falls location will be Ronald J. Riccio, former Dean and current Professor at Seton Hall University School of Law.

“We have been assessing the market for some time, given our numerous clients in southern and central New Jersey,” Managing Partner, Edward B. Deutsch explains. “The Tinton Falls office enables us to better serve and develop existing client relationships in Monmouth County while further enhancing our Alternative Dispute Resolution services.”
