McElroy Deutsch

Telecommunications

Our experienced attorneys and telecommunications lawyers provide a full range of legal services to our telecommunication clients. We regularly handle a wide variety of telecommunication related issues, including landlord-tenant disputes, boundary disputes, hazardous waste disputes, and other real estate matters. Our attorneys handle both the prosecution and defense of such actions on behalf of our clients which includes leading tower owners/operators, wireless carriers, and several Fortune 500 companies in sophisticated and complex litigation matters.

From the transactional perspective, our attorneys provide a wide range of legal services to the wireless communications industry including:

- Mergers and Acquisitions
- Negotiating and Drafting Service Agreements
- Project Management
- Drafting Ordinances and Regulations
- Advising on Commercial Implications of Regulations

Our real estate, land use and telecom lawyers also assist our telecommunications industry clients in the purchasing, selling, developing, leasing, and financing of real property of all types. The Firm handles the sale or acquisition of land parcels, including all phases of the negotiation of the purchase contract through closing and the various title, survey, and environmental issues that might arise prior to closing.

To the extent that telecommunications law spans a variety of different practice areas, our clients in the telecommunications industry have access to the expertise that our full-service law firm can provide.

View a list of our telecommunications lawyers.

Related Practices

Class Actions
Insurance Coverage
Intellectual Property
Litigation
Product Liability
Real Estate
Renewable Energy
Securities
Tax