McElroy Deutsch

Financial Institutions

The financial institutions lawyers on McElroy Deutsch's Financial Services Team have a wealth of experience working in the banking industry, and our attorneys are well versed in addressing the challenges of the rapidly changing market economy and regulatory environment. As a full-service law firm, our lawyers draw on the expertise of our broad range of practice areas to provide tailored solutions for our financial services clients.

We have and continue to represent financial institutions in a variety of areas such as: commercial lending, mergers and acquisitions, real estate, public finance, revolving lines of credit and tax credit transactions. Our banking attorneys have chartered financial institutions and handled all aspects of the organization of de novo commercial banks, from application to completed public offering.

Our financial institutions attorneys also have served as general counsel to commercial banks and counseled them with respect to matters involving the Federal Reserve Board, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and New Jersey Department of Banking and Insurance.
